He put bars on every pening even to the front doors, but even lug on Monday night, hes he has always been in dresd of being cobbed by burglars. He feels safe now, for last night place and arrangements were completed that make it absolutely impossible for a burglar to enter without being caught. He has put in a complete sat of the Wilder Duplex burglar slarins which were tested to his cutive sitisfaction last night. Wires are strateled across every spening in the build-ing and across every place that an opening can be made, and these are so arranged t is impossible for one to enter the store after they are set without sending in an alarm to the Wilder Duplex Burglar Alarm and Messenger company's station which is located at 148, North Main street. When the alarm sounds here they can tell exactly where to locate the thief or ascertain the cause of the his business in the store, and in the morning when Mr. Henderson arrives at his desk he will find a statement there to that effect, sent there by the central office, and signed by the patrolman. Even if Mr. Henderson, himself, enters, he will have to go through the same program as if he was a burglar. The least touch of a wire will sound the alarm. If the wire is cut the alarm will also ring, so that it is as impossible for an entry to be made without the central effice knowing it as it is for a camel to go through the even, and he succeeded in getting out.
